Types of Packaging

1. Carton Boxes

Strong corrugated carton boxes designed for export, with ventilation holes to maintain freshness and protect products during transportation.

2. Plastic Punnets

Small plastic containers used for delicate fruits such as grapes, strawberries, and pomegranate arils, ensuring protection and premium presentation.

3. Plastic Trays

Inner trays placed inside cartons to organize products, prevent damage, and improve visual presentation.

4. Net Bags

Mesh bags used for products like citrus, onions, and potatoes, allowing ventilation and easy handling.

Types of Packaging

5. Plastic Bags

Perforated or standard plastic bags used for inner packaging to maintain freshness and reduce moisture loss.

6. Internal Plastic Trays

Internal trays used to organize and protect fruits inside cartons, especially for premium presentation.

7. Wooden Crates

Traditional packaging used for heavy-duty transport and specific market requirements.

8. Modified Atmosphere Packaging (MAP)

Advanced packaging technique that adjusts the gas composition inside the package to extend shelf life.

Types of Labels

1. Product Label

Standard label containing product name, variety, origin, size, net weight, and packing details.

2. Barcode Label

Includes barcode (EAN / GS1) for product identification, retail scanning, and logistics tracking.

3. Traceability Label

Provides tracking information such as batch number, farm code, and packing date, often with QR codes.

4. Private Label

Customized branding label designed for clients to market products under their own brand identity.
